Wig-Wagging Being Done This Week as During the Civil War.

VETERAN SIGNAL CORPS CONDUCTING CEREMONY

Watchers Along the Avenue Were Tipped Off When the Parade Started Yesterday.

Inspiration for the national anthem the history of the United States is the Civil War Signal Service, known its clay, which is one of the historic spots about Washington that are atracting much attention this week. Being the highest point in the ridge be yond Georgetown, it was eminently fitted by nature as the place from which to burn signal fires at night and o wig-wag with the flags by day. Upon this height and across the rive on the Virginia shore, Julia Ward Howe aw the signal lights burning the night when she was inspired to write the war song which shall live in memory forever, and in which she says, "I have en the watch fires of a hundred cir-

As none of these old torches has been preserved by the signal office of the army, the set provided will be presented to the National Museum as relics. When Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. M.les, U.S. A., retired, ordered the start of the parade from the Peace monument, the signal was flashed immediately from the Capitol dome to the peak of the Treasury building, so that all persons along Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol to the White House might know that the big review had started. Round has established a signal station at that point in the park. This fort is a very prominent and picturesque place, situated in one of the beautiful spots of Washington. It was at Fort De Russy that Lieut. Round was first assigned to duty as a signal officer after he graduated at the signal camp of instruction. Other Stations Opened.

Signal stations have also been opened at the Emery mansion, near Fort Stevens, and at the Soldiers' Home, on the north side of the Potomac river, and at Fort Richardson, Fairfax Seminary and Munson's hill, on the south side of

The following Georgetown citizens The following Georgetown citizens acted as a local committee for entertainment of the Signal Corps: Prof. Frank B. Littell, the son of a signal veteran: Prof. Herbert R. Morgan of the U. S. Naval Observatory; Rev. Ralph Wright, pastor Mount Tabor Church; Rev. Charles W. Skinner, superintendent of the Industrial Home School; Col. B. T. Janney of the local G. A. R., and Dr. Samuel A. Jones of the Department of Agriculture. The latter has been secretary of the committee. His residence is directly adjoining the old samp.

This is the call of the Veteran Signal Corps, "Then shalt thous cause the trumpet of the jubilee to sound throughout all your land. Ye shall halfow the fiftieth year, it shall be a jubilee unto you."

Excursions to Historic Points. Several excursions from Washington have been arranged. Yesterday from to 5 p.m., after the grand parade, a reunion of the siege train of the arm, of the Potomac was held at Fort Richardson, where that organization Richardson, where that organization was originally effected by Gen. Me-Clellan in 1861. Fort Richardson is the highest of the Arlington forts and a most magnificent view of the National Capital and the Potomac valley can here we obtained.
